This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. STANDARD-PHONOGRAPHIC SERIES COMPLETED WITH THIS VOLUME: 1. Synopsis. 2. Hand Book. 3. First Reader. 4. Second Reader. 5. Dictionary.

A WORK of this kind unquestionably needed....But practically impossible with requisite completeness and within reasonable limit of price, before the construction of a definite, convenient, and systematic nomenclature.

Perfection of result not easily conceivable....More difficult of actual accomplishment....Especially in previously unlabored fields. Witness this work—the product of three years' diligent elaboration. But the earnest effort, perchance, not undeserving commendation....As it may result in great advance upon the old....And approximate sufficiently the desired end.

The only real Pronouncing Dictionaries those in which, as in this, words are respelled with a simple, certain, and accurate pronouncing alphabet. May be rendered available to Foreigners by introductory works.

As to the best system of Phonography—it is an obsolete question ...Already decided in favor of Standard-Phonography by its natural opponents.

The uniformity, accuracy, and taste displayed in the typographical details of this work due chiefly to the experience, judgment, and intelligent care of the compositor, Mr. A. O. WHELPLEY, and of the proof-reader, Mr. S. JENKINS.

Fervent Thanks for Life spared and the Blessed Opportunity of Achievement for a Beautiful and Useful Art.

A portion of this work will give indications that it was written in the time of the Slaveholders' Rebellion. May

INTRODUCTION.

PHONOGRAPHIC NOMENCLATURE.

1. The names of the simple-consonant strokes are—Pee, Bee, Tee, Dee, Chay, Jay, Kay, Gay, Ef, Vee, Ith, Dhee (pronounced as the pronoun thee; dh throughout the author's system of nomenclature denoting the sound of th in thy or breathe, while th denotes the sound of th in think or breath), Es, Zee, Ish (sh written downward), Shay (sh written upward), Zhay (zh having the sound of si in vision), El (l written downward), Lay (l written upward), Ar (the curve-sign for r, which is always written downward), Ray (the straight sign for r, which is always written upward), Em, En, Ing, Way, Yay, Hay.

2. The circle for s or z, in order to distinguish it from the stroke, is named Ise, where its sound can not be conveniently spoken in one syllable with the name of the stroke to which it is joined. Skay, or Iss-Kay, is the s-circle and the stroke for k. Iss-Bee, or Sbee, the s-circle and the stroke for b.

3. The large circle is named Ses or Sez, printed either in a separate syllable, or added to the name of a stroke without a preceding hyphen. Thus, Ses-Pee, Ses-Tee, Ses-En, Ses-Lay, Chay-ses or Chay-Ses, En-ses or En-Ses Ith-ses or Ith-Ses, Lay-ses or Lay-Ses, Dee-ses Iss.

4. The loop for st is named Stêh (e as in met), or the sound of the letters st is spoken in connection with the name of the stroke to which the loop is joined: thus, Steh-Tee, Steh-Pee, Star (st-loop and the downward r), Chayst, Kayst, Enst, Wayst, Ithst or Theest, Dheest, Efst or Feest, Ish-Steh.

5. The loop for ster is named Ster. To distinguish it from the name of another letter (Iss and Ter, or simply Ster), it is made to form, with the name of the preceding letter, a single word, accented on the first syllable. For example, Em, Bees, and Kay form with the name for the loop Ster, the words En-ster, Bee-ster, Kay-ster.

6. The brief sign for w is called Brief Way, or, in order to distinguish between the different facings of the sign, Wêh, when facing to the right, and Wûh, when facing to the left. When joined as a hook to Em, En, Lay, Ray, the characters thus formed are named Wem, Wen, Wel, Wer.

7. The brief sign for y is named Brief Yay, or, in order to distinguish between the different directions, Yêh, when the sign opens upward, and Yûh, when it opens downward.

8. The brief Way and Yay, when written in the vowel-places to indicate a following vowel, are called wē, yē, wā, yā, etc., the w and y being printed with a small letter.

9. The tick for h may be called Hetch, or named in accordance with a plan hereafter explained (23) of naming ticks, vowel-dashes, etc. (b.) The dot for h may be called Hêh, or spoken in connection with the vowels; thus, hē, hā, hā, etc. (c.) Aspirated detached wē, yē, etc., are denoted by whē or hwē, yhe or hyē, etc.; aspirated Way by Whay; (d) aspirated Wel, Wer, Wem, Wen, by Whel, Wher, Whem, When.

10. The El-hook signs are named, Pel, Bel, Tel, Del, Kel, Gel (g as in gay), Fel Vel, Thel. Dhel, Shel, Zhel, Yel, Mel, Nel, Rel.

11. The Ar-hook signs are named, Per, Ber, Ter, Der, Cher, Jer, Ker, Ger, Fer, Ver, Ther, Dher, Sher, Zher, Mer, Ner.

12. The back hook for in, en, or un, written at the beginning of Iss-Per or Sper, Iss-Ter or Ster, and some other letters, is named In; thus, In-Sper=In-Iss-Per=Ins-Per, In-Ster, In-Sker. In-Iss-Lay=In-Slay=Ins-Lay.

13. The enlarged El-hook signs, i. e., the Ler-hook signs, are named, Pler, Bler, Tler or Tel'er, Dler, etc. See Comp., 175.

14. The enlarged Ar-hook signs, i. e., the Rel-hook signs, are named, Prel, Trel, etc. See Comp., 175.

15. The simple, or group, signs with an Ef-hook, are named by prefixing the sounds they represent to the syllable Ef, if this can be done conveniently; if not, add the sound of f to the syllable-name of the stroke; thus, Pef, Chef, Ref, Plef, Tlef or Telf, Chref or Cherf, Prelf, Plerf, Chlerf, Thef (see Comp., 182, R. 1), Dhef (Dhee with the Ef-hook), Shef (Ish with the Ef-hook), Wayf (Way with the Ef-hook).

16. The simple, and the group, signs with the En-hook, are named by prefixing the sounds they represent to the syllable En, or, if more convenient, or better for distinction's sake, by prefixing the syllable-name of the stroke to the syllable En, or to the sound of n, the accent being placed upon the name of the stroke; thus, Pen, Ken, Plen, Chlen or Chel'en, Pren, Chren or Chern, Prel'en, Plern, Chlern, Es'en (not Sen=Iss-En), Shen or Ish'en (downward, i. e., Ish with the En-hook), Shayn (upward, i. e., Shay with the En-hook), Len (upward, i. e., Lay with the En-hook), El'en (downward, i. e., El with the En-hook), Ing'en, Wayn (instead of Wen, which is En with the Way-hook), Yayn, Ren, Hen. (b.) F added to the name of Brief or Enlarged Way denotes the addition of an Ef-hook; thus, Wehf, Yuhf, Way'wehf, Weh'wehf, Yuh'wuhf, Wuh'yuhf. See 6, 7, 25, and 26 of this Introduction.

Bet or Bed, Chet or Ched, Jet or Jed, Ket or Ked, Fet or Eft, Vet or Ved; Thet, Thed, or Ithet; Dhed or Dhet; Est (downward), Ist (shortened Es written upward, as in Nen[1]-Ist, opinionist), Isht or Shet (downward), Shayt (upward), Zhed, Let, Eld, Met, Med, Net or Ent, Ned or End, Art, Ard, Plet or Peld, Tlet or Telt, Delt or Dlet, Deld or Dled, Chlet or Chelt, Pret or Pert, Bred or Berd, Fret or Fred, Dred, Chert or Chret, Jerd, Kred, Gred or Gerd, Tret or Tred, Vert or Verd, Thred or Therd; Dhred, Dherd or Dhret; Shert, Shred or Sherd; Zherd, Mert or Merd: Peft, Beft, Teft, Deft, Preft, Bleft, Kreft, Cherft; Pent, Bent, Bend, Tent, Tend, Chent, Chend, Fent, Fend, Thent, Dhent, Es·ent, Es·end, Shend or Ish·end, Waynd (Wayn shortened), Pee·shont or Pee·shond, Dee·shond, etc.; Wemt or Wemd, Wert or Werd.

23. The dash-vowel word-signs, and similar small signs may be named by the words they represent, as 'all,' 'of,' 'to,' 'I,' 'he,' etc.; or names may be formed for them by adding the syllable oid (signifying like, or resembling) to the names of the half-lengths which these small signs resemble. Bed·oid[1] is the sign for all; Ded·oid[1] is the sign for already; Kret·oid[2] is the horizontal and-tick with the Ar-hook; Peft·oid[2] is the word-sign for to with the Ef-hook.

24. Prefix and Affix signs are indicated by quoting them, thus, 'con,' 'com,' 'accom' 'discon,' 'ing,' 'ingly,' 'bility;' or, their signs may be indicated by syllable-names.

25. Enlarged Way is named, when opening to the East, Weh·weh; to the West, Wuh·wuh; to the North-east, Weh·yeh; to the South-west, Wuh·yuh. 'Way' may be substituted for the first syllable of these names, if the sign is heavy. Weh·wernt is the name of Rent with Weh·weh joined as an initial hook. See Comp., 262.

26. Enlarged Yay is named, when opening upward, Yeh·weh; when opening downward, Yuh·wuh; when the sign is heavy, 'Yay' may be substituted for the first syllable of these names; thus, Yay·weh.

POSITION.

27. The figures 1, 2, 3 are used to denote respectively the first, second, and third position. The figure 4 is employed to indicate that the letter after whose name it is placed is to be written to imply a preceding to, according to the Comp., 250, Rem. 2. Thus, Es[4] is Es commencing at the line of writing, as in writing 'to say' in the Reporting Style. See under To in this Dictionary.

LETTERS DISJOINED, OR CROSSING, ETC.

28. To indicate that a sign is to be written disjoined near the other portion of the word, it is preceded or followed by a colon. En:Beest, indicates that En is to be written near, but not joined, to Beest. (b.) In phrase-forms a letter without a position-figure and preceded by the colon is meant to overlap the preceding letter (as Ted overlaps Ter or Dee in Dated and Treated in § 218 of the Compendium); thus, by "At what time, Tet[3]:Tee (or :Tee[1]),"* it is denoted that Tee for time may be written so as to overlap Tet[3] (at what), or it may be separated from Tet[3] by the usual word-space and written in its proper position as a word-sign.

29. The dagger (†) is printed between two signs to indicate that the character following it is to be written through the preceding one; thus, 'Ent†Ef' indicates that the Ef is to be written through the En.

30. By inclosing one or more letters (not vowels) in curves, it is indicated that the writer may, if he choose, dispense with the sign or signs for such letters.

31. Vowels are printed with small letters; with a hyphen if they are to be joined; thus, I-Dee, Bet-ou; or, if to be detached, in curves usually; thus, (i)Dee, (a)Dee, Tee(a). When a vowel is printed in a report g word-form or phrase-sign, the insertion of that vowel (for the sake of distinction) is denoted to be quite desirable

If it is printed in curves; thus, Es(ā), (i)Em; but if the vowel is printed in brackets, [ ], it is indicated that the practiced reporter may omit it with entire safety; thus, Met[ā] Tet[ā], Bee-[ou].

32. KEY TO THE PRONUNCIATION.

A—āle, āh, at (ăt, or ȧt), ȧsk, ȧrt.

Æ—ær=air.

E—ēve, ell or ĕll, hėr, chapəl, œ (ō lengthened)

I—īre, it.

O—ōld, nǫne, on, ȯr, ȯt=ought.

U—tūne, up or ŭp, fuul=fool, full; ū, ŭ (German long and short ü, and French long and short u).

DH—dhen=then, dhær=there.

TH—thin, think.

ZH—vizhon=vision, ruzh=rouge.

NK—ink, sink, think.

(·) Accent. (.) Diastole or Syllable-mark. (,) Nasalization.

33. It should be observed that 'æ' has precisely the same sound as a in at (that is, 'ȧ'), only that the former is pronounced slowly (that is, is long), while the latter is pronounced with greater rapidity (that is, is short). ȧ, ȯ are respectively the same as ā, ō, only they are pronounced quicker than the latter.

34. Nk represents whispered ng and k. This combination of sounds is represented in Phonography by the letters Ing-Kay.

35. It should be observed that in those unaccented syllables where, in ordinary or colloquial pronunciation, it is difficult to distinguish any of the vowels provided with a sign in the alphabet, the sound heard is that which the author was the first to recognize and locate—a vocal sound produced at the glottis and unmodified by the other organs of speech, which in his Hand-Book of Standard Phonography is VOCALIZATION.

37. When writing with the standard-vowel scheme (see Comp., 47; 48), write
A second-place heavy dot for either ä or ö
A second-place light dot for e, ĕ, or é.
A third-place light dot for a, ă, á, or a.
A third-place heavy dot for ä or à.
A first-place heavy dash for o or ò.
A second-place heavy dash for ŏ, ǫ.

38. The distinct sign for ò is a light first-place dash written at an oblique angle with the consonant-stroke.

39. The distinct sign for à is a light third-place arrow-point. See Comp., p. 205, 14th sound in the Extended Alphabet.

CONTRACTIONS, REFERENCES, POSITION, ETC.

40. Besides the usual contractions employed in dictionaries, I use the following—cs, corresponding style; acs, advanced corresponding style; rs, reporting style; ars, advanced reporting style; wcs, word-sign; cwcs, corresponding word-sign; acwcs, advanced corresponding word-sign; rwcs, reporting word-sign; arwcs, advanced reporting word-sign; dwcs, derivative word-sign; cdwcs, corresponding derivative word-sign; rdwcs, reporting derivative word-sign; cn, contraction; sp cn, special contraction; rcn, reporting contraction; dcn, derivative contraction; r, reporting, as in rwcs, reporting word-sign; ps, phrase-sign; cps, corresponding phrase-sign; pw or phr, phrase-writing; wt, without; do., ditto, the same; fr., frequent.

41. References are to the Compendium (Part II. of the Hand-Book), unless otherwise stated; and to the sections, unless otherwise specified.

42. The first form given after a word is understood to be for the cs, unless otherwise specified.

43. The form for the rs is the same as for the cs, unless differently indicated.

44. The phrase-signs are for the rs, unless otherwise stated in connection with the phrase.

45. The position of a form is generally left to be determined by the rules of position, except in case of word-signs, contractions, and phrase-signs.

NOMENCLATURE.

Ar, downward curve for r. See Ray.
B, denotes widening of Em to add b.
-D or -ED, denoting shortening to add d.
-DER, denotes lengthening to add dr.
-DHER, denotes lengthening to add dhr.
-'DHERDHER, denotes trebling to add dhrdhr.
DHER'DHERDHER, denotes quadrupling to add dhrdhrdhr.
-ED or -D, denotes shortening to add d.
'EF or -F, denotes an Ef-hook to add f or v.
Ef, the stroke for f.
-EL, denotes the El-hook.
El, downward curve-sign for l. 12, 3.
Em, stroke for m.
En, stroke for n. [181; 182.
-EN or -N, usually denotes the En-hook.
-ER, denotes the Ar-hook. See Ler.
Es, stroke for s. See Iss. Eses=Es-Iss.
Es'ef, Es with Ef-hook. 181, 2.
Es'en, Es with En-hook. Sen=Iss-En.
Esh'on or -esh'on, small Shon-hook after circle, loop, or hook. 197.
Est, shortened Es, downward. See Ist.
-et or -t, denotes shortening to add t. 212; 213.
-f or -ef, denotes Ef-hook.
-ger, denotes lengthening to add gr.
-ker, denotes lengthening to add kr.
-ler, denotes the Ler-hook. 175.
In, denotes In-hook.
Ish, downward sh. 12, 2. Ishes = Ish-Iss or -s, small circle. See Es. [Iss.
Ist, shortened Es, upward. See Est.
Lay, curve-sign for l, written upward. See El.
-p, denotes widening of Em to add p.
Ray, straight r, always upward. See Ar.
-rel or -rl, denotes the Rel-hook. 175.
Rel, Ray with large initial hook for l.
-s or S-, small circle. See Es and Iss.
Sef=Iss-Ef. See Es'ef.
Ses or -ses, large circle.
Ses'is, treble-size circle.
Shay, upward sh; do. with En-hook, Shayn; do. shortened, Shayt.
Shen or Ish'en, downward Ish and En-hook.
-shon, denotes large Shon-hook. 190.
-st, St-, or Ster, small loop.
Stef, Iss-Tef. Sten, Iss-Ten.
Ster, Iss-Ter. -ster, large loop.
-ter, denotes lengthening to add tr.
-ther, denotes lengthening to add thr.
-tiv, denotes Tiv-hook.
Wayn, Way with En-hook.
Wel, Wem, Wen, Wer, Lay, Em, En, Ray with the Way-hook.

THE

A.

THE letter 'a' has nine different sounds —ā, e, æ, á, à, ā, à, ɔ, o—as in 'ale, many, pare, at, ask, ah, art, all, what.' The sound of pare is the same as the vowel of at, only the former is long while the latter is short. In the production of æ and á the tongue is curved upwardly, thus, ⌒. In the production of ā (ask) the tongue is nearly straight, while in pronouncing ā, à, the root of the tongue is slightly depressed. The sounds denoted by ā, à are the same in quality but different in quantity, ā being long, while à is short. The vowel of what (o) is deepened à. See p. 212, Rem. 3.

Ordinarily æ is represented by the sign of ā; á by the sign of a; and à by the sign of ā. For the distinct signs for æ, á, and à, see 48, and p. 206, § 24, (14).

A-, à, or ə. A prefix to many English words, as in asleep, awake, ahead, afoot, abed. (2.) Words with this prefix are usually distinguished from those without it—as sleep, wake, head, foot, bed—by a difference of outline resulting from the requirements of vocalization, speed, and legibility. See Orth., §§ 3, 4, and 5. Asleep, for 'nstance, must commence with Es (60), so as to permit the writing of the first vowel, while sleep commences with Ies, as the briefest sign for s (58, a). See 117, 4, and 120, 2; 146 and 149, 2; 220, R. 2; Orth., 5, R. 1, a and b. (3.) In some cases, especially when the form of the word does not necessarily imply an initial vowel, it is best to write the prefix a- by the a-tick, as in: afar, aslope, astunt, awork, aweary. In this way, the word-sign for aware, Wer[2], might be completed or 'filled out.'

A, article; pronounced ā when emphatic; usually ə (see p. 214, g); we, a heavy dot (ā) on the line. It is usually represented by a horizontal or perpendicular tick joined to a following or a preceding word

Not distinguished in rapid writing from an-d .....69, R. 2.
Expressed by a tick .....71.
Preceded by -ing ....114.
Sometimes omitted.....250, 8.
Written to imply a preceding to, p. 188.

Admonish-ed-ition, rs, Dee²-Men. Diminish-ed-ution, Dee²-Men.

The general rule observed by the author in devising contractions for a word and one or more of its derivatives is to go only so far in their expression as they coincide; and sometimes to stop short of that if the words are very long and a suggestive contraction can be secured without. In other words, the rule is to express so much and only so much of a word to be contracted as is necessary to suggest the entire word and distinguish it from others (237, R. 4). Admonish and Admonition coincide in the syllables admon. The expression of this common part of the two words constitutes their contraction, and also that of admonished, inasmuch as the reporter writes the past tense or perfect participle the same as the present tense whenever a stroke or more can be saved thereby (258, R. 2; p. 168, R. 8). The syllables admon are expressed by Dee-Men (instead of Dee-Em-En, the signs used in the full expression), because that is the briefest expression.

Ancient, ān·shent, Enshont.
The promulgators of the Old Phonography taught that a large-hook letter could not or should not be shortened; probably from the fear that the stroke if shortened would be shorter than the hook, just as though the hook were not to be properly proportioned either to the general size of Phonography or to the particular letter. It is a principle of Standard Phonography that ALL hooked letters may be shortened; and hence are secured convenient forms for 'ancient, motioned, fashioned, sanctioned, impatient,' and similar words.

APPREHENSIVE, aprēhen'siv, Per-Ens-Vee; rwc, Pren[3]. See Comprehensive.
The publisher of Standard Phonography, in devising contractions, has constantly kept in view the principle of making analogous contractions for analogous words; so that one contraction familiarized usually indicates or suggests the contractions for several other words. (This is only one of many things as to which Standard Phonography possesses invaluable advantages over the Old Phonography.) Many contractions are formed in analogy with the contractions for apprehensive-sion: apprehensible: as, Sten for extensive-sion, Stens, for ex-tensible; Ses-Pen, suspension-sive; Spen², expensive-ness; Spen², expansive-sion; Spens², expansible; Dee-Klen, declension; Rays-Pen, responsive; Rays-Pens, responsible-ility.

In such phrases as 'as far as you (be, I, we, or they) can,' 'as near as you can,' the pronoun 'I, we, you, ye, he, or they' may usually be expressed with convenience; but the experienced reporter may omit it in such phrases with entire safety, easily supplying the proper pronoun by the context and memory. In the above phrases a dash is substituted for these pronouns; 'As far as —— can'='As far as I (we, you, he, or they) can.'

al syllable so that the secondary accent can fall on āt; and this is especially required for the easy pronunciation of the past tenses of such words, as, 'asō·shiāt·ed, vi·shiāt·ed.' Make a syllable less in these words, and they must be pronounced 'asō·sheted, vi·sheted'—pronunciations perfectly destitute of authority of any kind,—or, you must accent two successive syllables; thus, 'asō·shāt·ed, vi·shāt·ed;' which is destitute of any just authority, and contrary to the genius of our language at least, in respect of accent. (2.) Ease of accent also requires that i should keep the sound of a vowel in such words as 'association, vitiation'—'asōsiā·shon, vishiā·shon,' not 'as·ōshā·shon, vi·shā·shon. Webster says—"In such words as pronunciation, euphony seems to require that cia should be uttered in two syllables, prōnunsiā·shon, to prevent the repetition of the sound of sh, prōnunshāshon." This does not seem to be the sole reason, else what becomes of vishā·shon? The reason is partly, perhaps, because such words are not regarded as derivatives from 'prōnun·shiāt'! 'denun·shiāt'! etc., but from pronounce, denounce, etc. And this class of words being so pronounced, analogy, perhaps, and perhaps a knowledge of the Latin words from which they are derived, cause association, and similar words to be pronounced as though belonging to the class of pronounce, pronunciation, denounce

B.—Its Name, Sound, and Relations. This, the second letter of the English Alphabet, is named Bee. Its usual sound is what is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see Appendix to the Compendium), the middle labial sonant explodent, that is, a sonant or spoken explodent produced at the middle of the lips. (2.) If when the lips are in the proper position to produce b, they are slightly separated and the sonant voice (o) allowed to escape as in making s, there will be produced the middle labial sonant hiss, that is, the smooth sibilant of b. This sound, in accordance with the usual plan of denoting sibilation or aspiration, may be expressed by bh. It may be called aspirated Bee, or Bhee. (3.) Bh is the sound of the Latin f, the Greek F (Digamma), the German w, the Hebrew Bheth, and the Spanish b between vowels. (4.) The Standard-Phonographic sign for bh is a tapering Bee (p. 205, § 21). A considerable convenience may be secured in phonographing German by using, instead of the tapered Bee, one of the signs for w. No error in reading can result from this, if the reader will bear in mind that the sound of our w does not occur in that language. (5.) And those who can not pronounce bh should substitute for it our w rather than v. (7.) Nasalized or twanged b is m; p. 205, 20, 6, and R. 1, b. (8.) Trilled b is a sound made to infants; p. 205, 20, 5, and R. 1, g; p. 205, 22.

Ex [L.], ex; a prefix, signifying out of or from; Kays.

Most dictionaries give egz as the pronunciation of this prefix when preceding a vowel. This may, in consequence of such erroneous guidance, have become the pronunciation of the majority; but the Author doubts whether any good reason can be assigned for the change from eks to egz. To him the pronunciation ‘ek.zam·in, ek.zakt·, ek.zam·pel,’ seems easier for the organs of speech and more pleasant to the ear than ‘eg.zam·in, eg.zakt·, eg.zam·pel.’ In these and similar words an original Es sound is changed, as in many other cases, to a Zee sound; but allowing this substitution of s for s to have taken place, there is no obvious reason for the change of k to g; for the law of euphony, which frequently requires a change from a spoken to a whispered sound, or the contrary, so as to make two adjoining consonants in the same syllable both whispered or spoken, does not apply in such cases as these, where the consonants belong to different syllables. Then there is nothing peculiar in the pronunciation of this prefix. The s, as in many other cases, is changed to z, and the k remains the rightful occupant of a position which has been wrongly given to g. The compend ɷ should be understood to represent either ks or ks.

tam its sound. (2.) The sound of Hay is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see Appendix to the Compendium) the glottal whispered hum. It is a gentle jerk of the breath, producing by its friction in passing through the glottis a consonant, or a sort of whispered vowel. (3.) The corresponding hum, that is, the glottal sonant hum, is an indifferent vowel. It is produced in very gentle groaning. This sound the Author represents by ə. For further remarks as to h and ə, see the Comp., p. 214, R. 5, g. (4.) For the different sounds produced at the glottis, see the Comp., p. 211, Nos. 93–101 inclusive. (5.) The letter h has been extensively used in Romanic print to express sibilation or aspiration; thus, kh, gh, to denote the sibilants of k, g; sh, zh, to denote the smooth sibilants s, z; wh, rh, mh, to express whispered w, r, m. (6.) In such cases h is used, not to express of itself a separate consonant sound, but as a diacritic sign, to indicate a sound bearing to the sound represented by the letter preceding the h, a relation which is ordinarily signified by the term Aspirate—a term which covers different relations; for instance, aspirate Tee (th) is a whispered hush (i. e., rough sibilant) of Tee, or, more strictly speaking, corresponding to t; aspirate Dee (dh) is a sonant hush of d, or rather of a variety of d (d^).—See Comp., p. 214, R. 6. Aspirate Way (wh)

HACKED, hakt, Hay-Ket; ra, (Hay)-Ket. (1.) H followed by p, b, t, d, ch, j, k, or g, in the present tense of such monosyllabic verbs as hope, heap, heat, is represented by a Hay-dot. (2.) The stroke is employed in the past tenses of such verbs for the purpose of availing, without vocalisation, of the halving principle. (3.) But it will be better to write this class of words without Hay whenever its use would prevent writing a desirable phrase-sign, as in writing 'it has been hoped,' Tees-Ben-Pet; 'has been heaped,' Ies²-Ben-Pet. This is indicated by inclosing Hay in curves, as in giving the outline for Hacked, 'ra, (Hay)-Ket.'

I.

I. This, the ninth letter of the English alphabet, has five different sounds—ē, i, ē, ī, y—as in 'machine, it, bird, find, union.' (2.) The usual sound of 'i' in 'fine,' that is, "long i," is a diphthong, the elements of which are à (as in ārt) and i (as in it), i. e., ài. p. 215, R. 9, a. As to the different pronunciations of "long i," see Comp., 90, R. 1.

(3.) The phonographic sign for I is sometimes abbreviated, as in the contraction for 'highly,' and in the outlines for 'highland, high-priest.'

☞ (4.) In the ca, it is usually advantageous to join initial I to a following letter, whenever the junction would be convenient; thus, I-Vee, ivy; I-Dee, eyed. See Comp., 240, 1. (b). The reporter, of course, if he expressed the I at all, would avail himself of the joining whenever it would be of advantage; but he omits initial I, as well as every other vowel, whenever it is not required for the sake of legibility. In giving outlines for words commencing with I (or hI), only the consonants are expressed (except in those cases where even the reporter must insert the vowel), and the I, like any other vowel, is to be inserted according to the rules of vocalization.

I (pronoun), I, ics, I¹; rs, when written alone, Tetoid¹. 271.

(1.) The pronoun I is sometimes (in the rs very frequently) joined to a following word, by one stroke of the sign (I), written, according to convenience, in the direction of Pee, Tee, or Chay; thus, Petoid¹-Em, I am (or I may); Retoid-Dee², I do; Retoid-Dee², I had; Retoid-Ith², I think.

(2.) The reporter does, and the practiced writer of the corresponding signs may, join I to a preceding word, or between two words, by one stroke of the sign (I), written, according to convenience, in the direction of Tee or Kay, i. e., by Tetoid or Ketoid; thus, Em[2]-Ketoid-Net, may I not; Ef[1]-Tetoid-Weh, if I were. As he, in the acs and rs, are written by the same sign as joined the; so I, when joined to a preceding word, in the acs and rs, are written by the same sign as joined a-n.

(3.) The practiced reporter may omit I in such phrases as, 'as far as I can,' 'as near as I can,' 'as well as I can.' See remark at the end of phrases commencing with As, p. 25 of this work.

(4.) The practiced reporter may, in common phrases, omit I, rather than disjoin the letter following it, writing, for instance, Ef[1]-Dee, instead of Ef[1]-Tetoid: Dee, for 'if I do;' Ked[2]-Dee, instead of Ked[2]-*Tetoid:*Dee, 'could I do'.

J.

J. This, the tenth letter of the English alphabet, is named Jay. Its sound, the same as that of 'soft g,' is a consonantal diphthong, the elements of which are d and zh', i. e., a variety of zh as in vizh'on = vision. To produce zh', the true hush of z, the upper surface of the tongue very near the tip must make a sibilant contact with the gums at the point for z; which results in a very delicate zh; while in the production of the rather rough sound zh (in vizh'on), the true hush of z' (i. e., z made back of the point for the ordinary z), "the tongue is broadened and seemingly endeavors to fill the whole palate." (2.) If the mere varieties of elementary sounds were distinguished by types, the elements of j would be given as dzh'; but this would be entirely unnecessary, because the attempt to produce zh in connection with a preceding d naturally develops the variety zh'. See Comp., p. 214, R. 3. (3.) Some phonologists have concluded because j was not composed of d and the ordinary zh, that it was not compound at all, but a simple sound;—a fallacy precisely corresponding to the inference that the number eleven is incapable of resolution because it can not be resolved into two fives; whereas it is actually composed of a five and a six. (4.) The peculiarity of a German's pronunciation of j will be found to consist in making the second element sh instead of zh, simply because he is not acquainted in his own language with the sound of zh. He would make a nearer approximation to the English j by pronouncing dy = his dj. A Frenchman, having in his language the sound of zh = the French j, experiences no difficulty in pronouncing the English j = French dj. The comparison of these two facts furnishes sufficient proof that j is composed of d and zh.

Its zeal, Tees²-Zee-Lay.

ITSELF, itself, ves, Tees³

Itself may be added, in the rs, in the same way as It—which see; thus, Bets¹, by itself; Tets¹, it itself; Fets², for itself; though, for sake of legibility, it may be well for some writers to join itself by Tees only.

d naturally develope the variety zh'. See Comp., p. 214, R. 6. (3.) Some phonologists have concluded because j was not composed of d and the ordinary zh, that it was not compound at all, but a simple sound;—a fallacy precisely corresponding to the inference that the number eleven is incapable of resolution because it can not be resolved into two fives; whereas it is actually composed of a five and a six. (4.) The peculiarity of a German's pronunciation of j will be found to consist in making the second element sh instead of zh, simply because he is not acquainted in his own language with the sound of zh. He would make a nearer approximation to the English j by pronouncing dy = his dj. A Frenchman, having in his language the sound of zh = the French j, experiences no difficulty in pronouncing the English j = French dj. The comparison of these two facts furnishes sufficient proof that j is composed of d and zh.

K. This, the eleventh letter of the English alphabet, is named Kay. (2.) The sound of Kay is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see Appendix to the Compendium) the outer guttural whispered explodent. The corresponding sonant is the sound of Gay. See under G in this Dictionary. (3.) A strengthened Kay is produced by drawing the tongue well back when making k; i. e., by making a contact back of the point of contact for the common Kay. (4.) If, when the organs are in the proper position to produce k, the contact is broken up and the whispered voice (h) allowed to escape after the manner of its escape in producing sh, there will be produced the outer guttural whispered hush; i. e., the whispered rough sibilant of, or corresponding to, g—p. 211, sound No. 76. This sound, according to the usual plan of expressing aspiration or sibilation, may be expressed by kh. This is the sound of the German ch in Dach, of the Latin ch, of the Greek χ, of the Hebrew Khaph, and of the Welsh ç. (5.) The Standard-Phonographic sign for kh is a swelled Kay. p. 206, 24, No. 76. (6.) Nasalized or twanged Kay is whispered ng. This is the sound of n in sink, thank, and of the Welsh ngh. This sound may be denoted by ñ. p. 216, R. 1, b. In Phonography there is ordinarily no distinction made between ng and ñ, both being represented by Ing. (7.) Trilled Kay is the sound produced by hawking. See under G, H, and Q.

L. This, the twelfth letter of the English alphabet, is named El. (2.) Its sonant sound is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see the Appendix to the Compendium,) the tunem-middle dental sonant hum (or liquid). p. 211, sound No. 55; p. 205, 20, R. 1, e. (3.) Its corresponding whisper is the sound of l in the English ply, and of the Welsh ll, as in Llanelly (= Lhanelhi). (4.) This whisper may be represented, in accordance with the usual mode of expressing sibilation and aspiration, by lh. p. 205, 21. (5.) For the Standard-Phonographic sign, see p. 206, 24, No. 56; p. 205, 21. (6.) Lh in English requires no distinct sign, because its situation (namely, after another whisper, as in ply) always serves to distinguish it from the sonant. (7.) For the varieties of L, see p. 214, R. 7. (8.) The phonographic stroke for l when written upward is called, in the Author's Phonographic Nomenclature, Lay; and El, when written downward.

M.

M. This, the thirteenth letter of the English alphabet, is named Em. (2.) Its sound is called in the Author's analysis of the voice (see Appendix to the Compendium) the middle labial sonant twang. (3.) Its corresponding whisper is heard in the English tempt, and in the French schisme. It may, in accordance with the usual plan of indicating aspiration, be represented, as in Welsh, by mh. In English, its situation (namely, before a whispered consonant, as in tempt), is sufficient to distinguish it from the sonant m.

Mab, mab, Em-Bee.

Mac, mak, Em-Kay.

This prefix is sometimes contracted to M', or Mc; thus, MacIntosh, M'Intosh, or McIntosh. When the following consonant is k or g, the final consonant of Mac is silent, which fact should be observed in phonographing such names as the following: McGee, Em-Gay; M'Kenzie, Em-Ken-Zee.

Macadamize, makad·amīz, Em-Ked-Ems

N.

N. This, the fourteenth letter of the English alphabet, is named En. (2.) Its sound is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see the Appendix to Part II. of the Hand-Book) the inner-middle dental sonant twang. (3.) The corresponding whisper, which is the Welsh nh, and perhaps heard in the English sent, inch, may be indicated, in accordance with the usual mode of expressing aspiration, by nh. (4.) Dental twangs of the Arabic Dād and Tā are possible. (5.) In the combination n,g, as in long, and in the combination nk, as in ink, the letter n is taken simply as the type of nasalization, and denotes that the

O. This, the fifteenth letter of the English language, has nine different sounds—ō, ǫ, ŭ, ȯ, ȯ, ŭ, u, i, wu—as in "nō, nǫr e, son, ȯr, on, move, woman, women, one=wun." (2.) The sound represented by ǫ is the true short quantity of ō. It is heard in the usual pronunciation of "whole"=hǫl, not hōl nor hōl; "none" =nǫn, not nōn nor nun; "most"=mǫst, not möst nor must. In a pronouncing alphabet this sound should not be represented by ô, which is a well-settled sign for o, as in on, but by o. (3.) The sound denoted by ô is the true short quantity of o. Having taken o as the sound of o in on, the sign for o in or, which is the next below o, is formed by a flat (i. e., the so-called grave accent) over o; thus, ô. (4.) Let â à be taken as the signs of the vowels of âh and àrt. See under A, in this work. Now, o as in on is a deepened à. See p. 212, R. 3. A prolonged o is the corresponding long vowel â, which is the sound of the French à. The English word pot, pronounced with a prolonged vowel, is precisely the French word pâte.

O, interj, ô, ws, Dedoid², i. e., ô² in the direction of Dee. See phrases beginning with O, toward the close of phrases under the word Lord, p. 353 of this work.

O, a prefix in Irish names, ô; to be written as a part of the vocalization of the consonants of the remainder of the name; thus, O'Conner, (ô)Key-Ner; O'Dowd, (ô)Ded.

O, as an initial, should be written in accordance with directions of the Comp., § 83 and R. 2.

Otherwise, udh'erwiz, Dher²-Ways, ooc, or, as a pa, Dher²-Ways(I); ra, Dher²(or ²) Ways. In phr, other is frequently added by lengthening, or by the Dhertick; thus, Ardher¹-Ways, or otherwise: Chetoid²-Bedoid-Ways, he otherwise; Eidher¹:Ways, if otherwise.

Otherwise he (or the), Dher²-Ways-Retoid.

Otherwise his (is, as, or has), Dher²-Wayses.

Otherwise I (or a-n), Dher²-Ways-Ketoid.

Otherwise you, Dher²-Ways-Yuh.

Otium, ō'shium, Ish-Em. 186.

Ottar, ot'ar, Ter.

Otto, ot'o, Tee.

Otter, ot'er, Ter.

Ottoman, n and adj, ot'oman, Tee-Men. (Pl, Ottomans, Tee-Mens.)

Ouch, ouch, Chay.

Ought, ot, we, Jedoid¹, i. e., o¹ in the direction of Jay.

R. 1. Ought is frequently added in the rs by halving; Bus, Tet¹, it ought; Chet¹, which ought; Isht¹, she ought; Dhet¹, they ought.

R. 2. The sign Tent¹ (it ought not) is regarded as unvocalized Tont, the first t standing for it; o (implied by position) for ought; and nt for not. Upon the same principle are formed the signs for Which ought not, They ought not. (b.) It is sometimes better for joining a following word to add not by Net to the signs for Which ought, etc.

R. 3. The sign Tef¹ for It ought to have, is regarded as unvocalized Tov, t standing for it; o (implied by position) standing for ought; and the Vee-hook for have, to being omitted and to be supplied. (b.) This plan of representing It ought to have, Which ought to have, etc., originated with the Author, and was first presented by the Hand-Book. p. 169, R. 18. The Old-Phonographic expression for It ought to have, was Tee² Jedoid¹-Vee. Which ought to have, etc., were represented in a similar way. See It would have, Which would have, etc. (c.) The signs for It ought not and It ought to have appear to be formed upon analogous plans, the sign for It ought not being unvocalized Tont¹, and the sign for It ought to have being unvocalized Tov¹. See the following phrases.

P. This, the sixteenth letter of the English alphabet, is named Pee. (2.) Its usual sound is what is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see Appendix to the Compendium) the middle labial whispered explodent. See p. 210, § 25, No. 36. The corresponding sonant is the sound of b as in bay. (3.) There are four labial hushes: 1. The sounds of English f and v, which are rough sibilants (i. e., hushes) made with the outer portion of the lower lip. 2. Two sounds which, in accordance with the usual plan of expressing sibilation or aspiration, may be represented by ph and bh. (a.) Ph is a hiss formed by bringing the middle of the lips together, as when naturally closed, and extruding the breath after the manner of s. This is the sound of the Latin PH and the Greek φ. (b.) As to the corresponding sonant, bh—which requires the same position of the lips, but the extrusion of the voice (i. e., ə) instead of the whispered breath—see under the letter B in this Dictionary. (4.) As to the sounds of w and wh, see also under the letter B in this work; and so also as to the trills of p and b. (5.) As to the Standard-Phonographic signs for the representation of the labial consonants, see the Compendium, p. 206, § 24, Nos. 35 to 46 inclusive.

Pleiades, plē·adēz or pli·adēz, Pel-Dees.
☞ Pleiades is a simple transfer of the Greek Πλειάδες = pli·ades; and there is no reason in this case for violating the general rule of substituting in pronunciation a simple vowel or a diphthong for the Greek diphthong ει; hence I object to the pronunciation plē·yadēz given by Webster. It should be plē·adēz or pli·adēz. And I prefer pli·adēz, retaining the sound (nearly) of the Greek diphthong, as in Meiosis, Teinoscope, Deipnosophist, Deipnotherium.

R.

R. This, the eighteenth letter of the English alphabet, is named Ar. (2.) The sound usually given to it in America is what is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see the Appendix to the Compendium) the outer palatal burr, which is sonant as in ear, breach, and whispered in preach. This is the smooth, untrilled sound, and belongs to what I denominate liquids, i. e., consonants which require the vocal organs to be in the most open position consistent with the formation of a consonant. p. 204, 16. (3.) There is a trilled r (whispered and sonant), which is the sound usually given to Ar by the Irish and other Europeans. These sounds may be represented by ɹ, ɹh. The trilled Ar will eventually be displaced by the smooth Ar, by the influence of those principles which have removed from the language other harsh sounds, such as the sound of gh in laugh, for which f has been substituted. (4.) As to the two other Ars, see the Comp., p. 218, R. 5, b, c, and d. (5.) As to the place of these sounds in a scientific inventory of vocal elements, see Comp., p. 211, Nos. 59, 60; 67, 68; 83, 84; 86, 86.

U.

U. (1.) This, the twenty-first letter of the English alphabet, is named Yoo. (2.) Anciently it was not distinguished from V, which was read as Vee or Voo, as might be required. (3.) From this fact originated the name Double Yoo for W, it being compounded of two V's or Yoos. (4.) The letter Yoo has six sounds—ū, u, ŭ, yu, yui, i. e, ā—as in tūne, rude = rūd not rud, full, up, unite=yunit', union = yun'yon, busy = biz'i, bury = ber'i, buy=bāi=bi. (5.) The sound of what is called "long Yoo," as in tune, is iu (i. e., i'u, the first element, i as in it, being accented, and the voice gliding to the second element)—a pure close diphthong. 87, R. 1, 2, 3, and 4; 88; 89; 93. It is not ē-u, or more accurately iu (i indicating shortened ē). Tiun, ñu, diu'ti, etc., are disagreeable pronunciations which have been induced, perhaps, by the mistaken analysis (ē-oo) of ū (as in tūne) given by most lexicographers. (6.) Some orthoepists assign to "long Yoo" after r (and some add), l, ch, j, sh, zh, a different sound from what it has after other consonants. Some say that such different sound is oo=u, and others, that it is a peculiar sound, neither ū nor u. But I find no authority for such distinction in the pronunciation of those who have not been misled by false orthoepical teaching; nor can I perceive any possible reason in the nature of sounds or their combinations for such a difference. (7.) Those who attempt invariably to give to "long ū" the sound of yui, would doubtless find a difficulty in saying ryud for rude, lyui for lieu, and would naturally drop y, saying rud, lui, etc. But no such reason for a false pronunciation exists in the case of those who properly give to "long Yoo" in such words the pure diphthongal sound, iu = ū. For them it is as easy to pronounce iu = ū in rūd, lū, Jū, etc., as in dū, nū, fū; nor do they find any reason or tendency to pervert duke into juk, tutor into chutor, Tuesday into Chuz dā, as do those who attempt to say dyuk instead of dūk, tyutor instead of tū'tor, and Tyuz'dā instead of Tūz'dā. (8.) As to the euphonic changes from ew = ū to yu or yui, or from yu or yui to ū, see Comp., 187. (9.) No valid reason can be assigned why a distinct stenographic sign should not be given to the pure diphthong ū=iu as well as to the pure diphthongs I=āi, oi, ou. Yet this sound, as distinct from yui and yu as ū is from ū, was not provided with any distinct sign in the Old or English Phonography.

Ew and Yoo sometimes joined, 240, 2.

U.

U. (1.) This, the twenty-first letter of the English alphabet, is named Yoo. (2.) Anciently it was not distinguished from V, which was read as Vee or Yoo, as might be required. (3.) From this fact originated the name Double Yoo for W, it being compounded of two V's or Yoos. (4.) The letter Yoo has six sounds—ū, u, ŭ, yu, yun, i. e, ȧ—as in tune, rude = rūd not run. ful, up. unite=yunit', union yun'yon, busy = buz'i, bury = ber'i, bay [illegible] (5.) The sound of what is called "long Yoo," as in tune, is ū [illegible] ū as in it, being [illegible] according to the [illegible] phthong [illegible] 58; 59; 58. It [illegible] ū in [illegible] fu, durti, etc., [illegible] pronunciations which have been introduced, perhaps, by the initial [illegible] of ȧ (as in tune, [illegible] ers. (6.) Some orthoepists [illegible] "long Yoo" after [illegible] d, l, th, j, sh, zh, a different sound from which it has after other consonants. Some say that such difference [illegible] others, that it is a peculiar sound, neither ȧ nor ŭ. But I find [illegible] for such distinction in [illegible] those who have not been [illegible] orthoepical terms; nor can I perceive any possible reason in the nature of sounds or their combinations for such a difference. (7.) Those who attempt invariably to give to "long Yoo" the sound of yu, would doubtless find a difficulty in saying rymd for rude, lyu for lieu, and would natu-

V. (1.) This, the twenty-second letter of the English alphabet, is named Vee. (2.) Its usual sound is what is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see the Appendix to the Compendium) the outer labial sonant hush; i. e., rough sibilant. p. 2-5, § 20, R. 1, c. (8.) Its corresponding whisper is the sound of F. See under F. (4.) The German V has the sound of aspirated Bee. See under B, 2 and 3. (5.) The Latin V, it is supposed, had the sound of the English W.

W.

W. (1.) This, the twenty-third letter of the English alphabet, is usually called "Double Yoo," but Way would be a better name; for each name of a letter should contain prominently the sound of the letter to which it is assigned. (2.) The usual sound of Way, which is its sound in we, is what is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see Appendix to the Compendium, 20, R. 1, e) the inner labial sonant hum or liquid. (3.) The whispered sound, corresponding to or mating with Way, I denominate the inner labial whispered hum or liquid. This sound, in accordance with the usual mode of indicating aspiration, is properly enough indicated by wh; which combination, since it has the value of a single letter, should be named Whay, and not Double Yoo Aitch! p. 205, 21; —§ 144; 147; 148. (4.) As to the distinction between the English w and the German w, see under B. (5.) The letter o in one = wŭ. (6.) When the sound of k is represented by q, a following w sound is always represented by u, as in queen = kwēn. See under Q. (7.) For general rules for the use of the four different phonographic methods of representing w, see Compendium, 116-138 inclusive.

X. (1.) This, the twenty-fourth letter of the English alphabet, is named Ex. (2.) It is not ordinarily the sign of a single sound; it may be called a compend or expedient, representing two sounds, k and s. (8.) As to the proper pronunciation of x in the middle of words, see under Ex in this Dictionary. (4.) At the beginning of words, x has the sound of z. (5.) Although this letter has no sound which may not be represented by other letters, it is usefully retained in the Alphabet, even for pronouncing purposes, as a compend, or expedient, as it has been employed in the pronouncing part of this work.

Y. (1.) This, the twenty-fifth letter of the English alphabet, is ordinarily named Wy = wi, but with very obvious and great impropriety, because it does not contain the usual sound of the letter. A better name for it would be Yay. (2.) Its usual consonant-sound, as in yet, is what is denominated in the Author's analysis of the voice (see the Appendix to the Compendium) the middle palatal sonant hum. (3.) The sound of Yay in yet is the sound of the Latin and German j. (4.) The corresponding whisper, i. e., the mate of y, is sometimes heard in English, as in inhumanity when pronounced inhyumaniti. This sound was indicated in Latin by Hj, as in Hjero or Hiero. (5.) In accordance with the usual mode of expressing aspiration and sibilation, the whispered y may be denoted by yh and named Yhay. (6.) In Phonography the mark of aspiration usually precedes the y. (7.) Y is sonant following a d or other sonant, but whispered when diphthongally pronounced with a preceding t (as in the Swedish tj=tyh) or other whisper. (8.) Dy and tyh diphthongally pronounced are very nearly like dah' and tah', i. e., ch and j; zh' and sh' denoting varieties of zh and sh produced by the tip of the tongue. See the Compendium, p. 214, R. 6. (9.) As to the combination of a sonant or surd y with a preceding consonant, see the Compendium, p. 215, R. 8. (10.) There are four different signs of Yay—namely, y, j, l, u (partly)—as in yet, halleluyah, onion, use=yuis.

Are [add].

Rem. 1. Are, in phrase-writing, is frequently expressed by Ray; but when written alone, and generally when commencing phrase-signs, the most convenient sign is Ar. It is the most convenient also because of allowing shortening for the derivative sign-word Art, and lengthening for the addition of dhr. See Dhr in the body of this work. It would not be allowable to shorten Ray for art; and if allowable, the sign would not be suggestive. In Standard Phonography it would be allowable to lengthen Ray for are thr, but Raydher, though allowably used after another word for these words, would not, when alone, be so suggestive as Ardher, nor so convenient for joining with a following word. Therefore, the general use of Ray for are, when standing alone, can not be approved.

HAVE [add]. See Have in the Index of the Second Standard-Phonographic Reader.

Rem. 1. (a.) Under § 249 of the Compendium Have may be omitted before Been and Done in the corresponding style even, when it can not be more clearly or easily expressed by an Efhook. (b.) There is no difficulty in supplying Have preceding ANY past participle whose outline differs from that of the past tense (or time) as do the following:

Arisen,	Been,	Borne,	Done,
Awaked,	Bitten,	Broken,	Drawn,
Beaten,	Blown,	Chosen,	Driven,

Eaten,	Hidden,	Shown,	Sworn,
Fallen,	Known,	Slain,	Taken,
Flown,	Laden,	Smitten,	Thrown,
Forsaken,	Lain,	Sown,	Told,
Frozen,	Risen,	Spoken,	Torn,
Gone,	Seen,	Stolen,	Woven,
Grown,	Shaken,	Striven,	Written.

(b) BUT OBSERVE, that Have should not be omitted when it can be conveniently expressed by a hook, as in writing I have chosen, Teftoid[1]-Chay-Sen; I have taken, Teftoid[1]-Ten; I have known, Teftoid[1]-Nen; I have gone, Teftoid[1]-Gen; I have shown, Teftoid[1]-Shen; it having been, Tef[2]-Ben; who have been, Jeftoid[2]-Ben; they have-ing been, Dhef[2]-Ben; which have been, Chef[2]-Ben.

Rem. 2. Have after I.—When the Vee-hook of Teftoid[1] (for I have) will prevent the formation of a desirable phrase-sign, the hook (for have) may be omitted, and have be supplied by aid of the context, especially if it be made a rule that Tetoid[1] for I is followed by have, WHENEVER SOME OTHER DIRECTION OF THE I-TICK MIGHT HAVE BEEN AS CONVENIENTLY EMPLOYED. For instance, in Tetoid[1]-Lay-Ved (I have lived), Tetoid should be read I have, because I alone might have been more conveniently represented by Petoid[1]. But in I would (Tetoid[1]-Wuh) and I should (Tetoid[1]-Retoid), I is most conveniently represented by Tetoid. (b.) Of course, when it conveniently can be, Have should be written after I as after other words, as indicated by the preceding remark (Rem. 1, c).

In [add]—

Rem. 1. In, with or without an article (a-n or the), may be prefixed to a word in its natural position; thus, In secret, or In a (or the) secret, In-Skret[1]; In sacred, or In a (or the) sacred, In-Skred[2]; In (the) security, In-Skret[2]; In similar, In-Sem[1]; In some, or In the same, In-Sem[2]; in spirit, or In a (or the) spirit, In-Spret[1]; In a separate, In-Spret[2]; In (or In the) toleration, In[like Yuh made backward]-Tier[2]; In telling, In-Tel[2]: 'ing'; In settlement, In-Iss-Tel[2]-Ment; In civil, or In a (or the) civil, In(or En)-Svel[1]; In (the) consideration, In-Sdershon[2]; In construction, or In a (or the) construction, In-Stershon[2]; In the extraction, In-Stershon[2]. See Comp., p. 168, R. 10, where this principle is explained.

Rem. 2. In Ms, or In as may be prefixed to a word in its natural position by an In-hook and a circle (or by enlarging a circle); thus, Ins-Kershon[2], in his creation; Ins-Prens[1], in his appearance; In-Ses-Pret[1], in his spirit; Ins-Gret[2], in as great; In-Ses-Kret[2], in as sacred; In-Ses-Pershon[1], in his expression; In-Ses-Pershon[2], in his separation; In-Ses-Kershon[1], in his description. See other phrases of this kind below, and under In in the body of this Dictionary.

Rem. 3. In En- (ins-, ons-, or uns-) — By turning a circle on the back of En an In-hook may be implied; because a single en-, in-, on-, or un- is always represented by an In-hook whenever a circle would have to be turned on the back of the En-stroke if that were used; thus, In-Spret[1], inspirit; In-Skret[2], insecurity; In-Slay-Vee, enslave; In-Sem-Lay, unseemly; In-Slet[1], onslaught. (b.) Hence, En[1]-Iss[on the back of En]-Sperd, may be read In inspired, or In an (or the) inspired, or Uninspired. See Unenslaved, Uninspired, Uninspirited, etc.
In a (or the) celebration, In-Slay[2]-Bershon.

Is [add]—
Rem. 1. Is, like any other circle-sign-word, may frequently be prefixed to a word commencing with a circle, by enlarging the circle, thus, Bee¹-Mets, is sometimes. (b.) The sign-word thus prefixed usually determines the position of the sign, in accordance with § 245 of the Compendium. (c.) This plan of prefixing the circle-signword was introduced as a part of the Author's improvements on the Old Phonography, and was first explained on p. 182, R. 4, of the Compendium.

First Reader.—New and Revised Edition: Stereographed in the Corresponding Style; with interpaged Key; with Questions; and with Notes. $1.75; postpaid, $1.81. Key separate, with Questions and Notes; 50c.; postpaid, 54c.

Second Reader.—New and Revised Edition: Stereographed in the Reporting Style, with Key and Notes. To be studied in connection with the Reporting-Style chapter of the Hand-Book. $1.75; postpaid, $1.81.

Standard-Phonographic Dictionary.—"The last great crowning work of the Standard Series," gives the pronunciation and the best outlines (Corresponding, Advanced Corresponding, and Reporting) of about 60,000 words, and the forms for about 60,000 phrases. Beyond comparison with any shorthand dictionary or vocabulary ever published. Invaluable to writers of either style. Cloth, $5; genuine morocco, $7; (Octavo-form from the same plates, with wide margins), cloth, $6; leather, $8; morocco, $9.

The Reporter's List.—With engraved forms, combining in one list, in chart-like form, and in phonographic-alphabetical order, all the Word-Signs, Contractions, etc., contained in lists of the Hand-Book, and with many thousand other words for comparison, contrast, and distinction, with explanations in the corresponding style. 1000 engraved pages and 139 pages of common print, consisting of Preface, Introduction, Notes, and Index. The Index is arranged in the common-alphabetical order, which permits the easy finding of any word or phrase in the book. A very valuable work. Total number of pages 1139. Price, cloth, $5; leather, $6; morocco, $7.

Practice-Book Series.—UCS=Unvocalized-Corresponding Style. Engraved in the Advanced-Corresponding Style, with Key and Questions and Notes. Very useful for practice in reading or writing without the vowels. Composed of short articles of scientific and literary matters. Very interesting and instructive. 12mo. 122 pages. Cloth. Price, $1.25.

ICR=Intercolumn Reporting Style. A series of Business Letters engraved in the Reporting Style, in one column and in the adjoining column (most convenient for reference) Key, Notes and Questions. A large portion of these letters were received from phonographers to whom they had been dictated by their employers, and they furnish a great variety of subjects and styles of composition. This book will prove invaluable to the student preparing for office work. 12mo, 122 pages. Cloth. Price, $1.25.

Lady of the Lake.—By Sir Walter Scott. With Frontispiece. Stereographed in the advanced-corresponding style, with interpaged Key; and with Notes. Total number of pages, 328. Price, $2; postpaid, $2.10. Morocco, $4; postpaid, $4.10.

Moral Culture.—A portion of Prof. John Blackie's celebrated lecture "On Self-Culture," also several valuable miscellaneous articles; engraved in the Advanced-Corresponding Style, and with common-print Key. 39 pages of engraving, 31 pages of common-print. A very interesting and useful book for phonographers. Cloth. Price, 75 cents.

Odds and Ends—(or Phonographic Intelligencer).—In common-print.—Has a variety of matter of interest and value to phonographers. 75 cents.

PERIODICAL VOLUMES.

The Student's Journal.—A 20 quarto-page monthly devoted to Standard Phonography, has been published continuously since 1872. It succeeded the Standard-Phonographic Visitor (a weekly) which was published continuously for five years preceding 1872. THE STUDENT'S JOURNAL is the oldest and best phonographic journal in America. Each number has eight pages of lithographed and several pages of engraved phonography. News of importance to phonographers, portraits, biographical sketches, and fac-similes of the reporting notes of prominent phonographers, are frequently given. Subscription price $1. per year. For list of bound volumes of the JOURNAL, see Price List below. Sample copy free.
